

Director of Strategic Development - ASME

Vacancy

Mission Statement

“The Association seeks to improve the quality of medical education by bringing together individuals and organisations with interests and responsibilities in medical and healthcare education”.

ASME is looking to expand its collective leadership and the infrastructure needed to support and co-ordinate an expanding range of activities and services. We are seeking a Director of Strategic Development to work with the other Senior Officers to help the Association develop appropriately and ensure it achieves its goals.

Goals

ASME seeks to

- Promote high quality research into medical education
- Provide opportunities for developing medical educators
- Disseminate good evidence based educational practice
- Inform and advise Governmental and other organisations on medical education matters
- Develop relationships with other organisations and groupings in health care education

The main responsibilities and duties of the postholder are set out in the attached job description.

The closing date for applications is Friday 6 August 2010. Interviews will be held in central London (UK) on Wednesday 29th September 2010. Applicants from all countries will be considered.

The appointment will be for a three-year term from October/November 2010, subject to satisfactory review at the end of year one.

Duties are expected to take in the region of half a day per week. An honorarium of £6,000 (or equivalent) per annum will be payable.

Application is by CV accompanied by a covering letter outlining your vision for the role over the next three years. Applications should be posted or emailed to:

Dr Graham Buckley
ASME Chairman
12 Queen Street
Edinburgh
EH2 1JE
UK

Telephone: +44 (0)131 225 9111

email: graham@asme.org.uk